Explore the local area, a stones throw away

Harlow

Harlow is a New Town designed to relieve the congestion of London in 1947. Its long history still survives though, in the rural parishes that surround 'The High' its modern centre. 'The Lawn' is the first tower block built in Britain in 1951. A wide range of sculptures are located around Harlow including those by Henry Moore.

Bishop's Stortford

Just over the border in Hertfordshire lies Bishop's Stortford, the birthplace of Cecil Rhodes who found his fortune in the South African diamond mines.

Sawbridgeworth

Described as one of the best small towns in the county, Sawbridgeworth prospered from the malting industry and is dominated by a 13th century church spire. The riverside maltings have been converted into an antiques centre. The town is a conservation area with picturesque streets and Georgian/Victorian buildings.

Epping

Founded in the 13th century by the canons of Waltham Abbey, Epping is set on the old coaching route from London. Its long wide High Street is full of attractive buildings and old inns. To the north, is the famous Epping Forest, covering some 6,000 acres. The former royal hunting ground was the haunt of the legendary highwayman Dick Turpin.
